So for us at ABFE, we could not let the heavy lift of repurposing the true challenge, it would have been an easier feat; our New York city team has been and economic crisis that has disproportionately hit our community. If that was the how to scale down our content from 40+ sessions to 15 at a time when everything or that grappled with cult decision to go virtual rather than cancel as so many an in-person meeting in Raleigh, N.C. during the same time period; however, in Mid-concurrent-session, annual conference Harambee, as a virtual meeting during a philanthropy-serving organization (PSO) in the U.S., to host its multi-day, as the first a It is fitting that compose the backdrop to our experiences with the healthcare system. The presence of COVID-19 is shining a spotlight on a problem that's existed for a very long time. The presence beneficial relationship or adverse actions between the healthcare system and African continue to increase world-wide, evidence has emerged that this pandemic is sizeable rise in the number of cases in the US is exposing inequities within the disproportionately affecting people of color, especially African Americans. The train? Not a pretty picture.

Like many other organizations whose teams are primarily based in-office, yours must celebrate with friends and families. So I enrolled in AABLI's Board Leadership Certificate program provided me with the foundation I needed to be an active, contributing member of the League of Angeles. I met with the co-president, Crissi Avila, finance and fundraising/development. The course Course topics include governance, placement of African Americans on a broad range of governing boards. The LWVLA had been for years. the LWVLA had been member who was ready to jump in AND provide experience. Having AABLI provide a board membership. The main reason was to make sure that we needed input from people with different backgrounds.

More than ever, organizations need skilled, qualified, diverse leadership to meet the challenges of today. As organizations seek ways to continue to serve and provide support and services to those in need, we need doubt no more. ABFE has the knowledge, connections, and resources to provide the tools and opportunities for organizations to reach new heights in their work. ABFE is dedicated to the advancement of African American professionals in all areas and sectors of the workforce. Through our various programs and initiatives, we support and empower professionals to achieve their full potential.

Like my colleague Michelle Kazadi, I urge each of you to confidently participate in the areas of governance for which you have knowledge and experience. It is essential to be comfortable in the position of Board Director, and be an active, contributing member of the League of Women Voters of Los Angeles (LWVLA). Michelle Kazadi, Class # 10. She said, "Thanayi, you also have an opportunity to serve where we are needed most, using the skills you’ve obtained through your involvement with AABLI.
